IBS Promotes Jeff Jorgensen to Company President

May 13, 2015 OAKBROOK, IL

Interactive Business Systems, Inc. (IBS), an IT consulting firm headquartered outside Chicago IL, announced the promotion of Jeff Jorgensen to company president. In his new role, Jorgensen will oversee sales and delivery as well as expansion of IBS' technology services and markets.

"We are pleased to make this announcement," said IBS CEO Dan Williams. "Jeff has played a key role in IBS' success, and this promotion is well-aligned with our future growth goals." In recognition of Jorgensen's contributions to the company, Williams notes, "Jeff is committed to growing our leadership at IBS. He's a hands-on executive, putting his 20+ years of experience toward training and executive mentorship, providing career growth to our teams and improving the level of service to our customers."

Jorgensen joined Interactive Business Systems as a manager in 2001, and had served as Sr. Vice President since 2007. As the senior executive responsible for sales and operations in IBS' U.S offices, he also oversaw the company's IT development centers in Livonia, Michigan and Hyderabad, India.

Says Jorgensen, "I want to continue the tradition of IBS as a great company to do business with. We set a goal of being the company our clients and consultants turn to first, because they like us, they value us, and they trust us. We're going to keep refining and pursuing that goal."
